INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE. FIGURE OUT THE BEST CAREER FIT FOR YOU.

ACCOUNTANCY

Graduates entering this profession who want a recognised qualification should expect to study for professional examinations whilst working. There are different routes to becoming a qualified accountant. The four major routes to qualifying are:

Chartered Accountants (ACA) – many graduates train with a public practice accountancy firm but it is becoming more common to find training opportunities in both large organisations and public sector organisations. For further information, visit The Institute of Chartered Accountants: careers.icaew.com

Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) – can opt to work in any sector and have the opportunity to train and work in a wide variety of organisations from large, multinational companies to small, local businesses. For further information, visit The Association of Chartered Certified Accountants: accaglobal.com

Chartered Public Finance Accountant (CIPFA) – is responsible for ensuring the effective operation of accounting and financial activities within public sector organisations. Increasingly, members are also working in industry and private practice firms. For further information, visit: cipfa.org

Chartered Management Accountant (CIMA) – tend to work in all types and sizes of industrial, commercial, and public sector organisations. For further information, visit: cimaglobal.com

EMPLOYER TIP

Most careers across Financial Services will require you to undertake further study for professional qualifications. It's always worth checking with those offering your qualification to see if you may be exempt from taking some modules thanks to your studies at university. This could reduce the amount of professional study required to achieve your professional goals quicker.
